Dom Phillips (1964–2022) was a British journalist and freelance writer for The Guardian. On 5 June 2022, he and Brazilian Bruno Araújo Pereira, an expert on Indigenous peoples of Brazil, went missing in the remote Javari Valley in the far western part of the state of Amazonas in Brazil, one of the most remote zones in the rainforest. On 15 June, a man confessed that both Phillips and Pereira were killed. Another victim of Man's war on Nature. RIP
