Journalist Daphne Caruana Galizia (born Daphne Anne Abella, 08/26/1964), who led the Panama Papers investigation into corruption in Malta, was killed by a powerful car bomb near her home 10/16/2017. Galizia was a fearless critic of cronyism and corruption; her outspoken and uncompromising personal blog, Running Commentary, in which she daily lambasted crooks and politicians, had 400k readers. Malta's total pop is only 420k! Honor her memory here.
