Brad Arnold, lead singer and founding member of the Grammy-nominated rock band 3 Doors Down, died Feb 7 at age 47, after revealing he had stage 4 kidney cancer. A Mississippi native, Arnold rose to prominence with the band’s 2000 breakthrough hit Kryptonite and remained its frontman for more than two decades, releasing chart-topping mainstream rock albums. Both Kryptonite and When I’m Gone received Grammy noms. He is survived by his wife.
