Memory ID: Q8211PWNLC

Produced by: Kelsey Foxy

Porches play an important role in this book. They signify a sense of community coming together, whether it be in negative or positive way. The "porch sitter" that judge Janie as she comes into town are all bonded together in this setting, even if to gossip. The meetings that take place on Jody's porch also give a sense of meeting, bondage, and importance for all that partake. It is an important place for person to person discussion.
