Pereira, a 41-year-old father of three, spent much of his life in service of the country's indigenous peoples since joining the Brazilian government's indigenous agency (FUNAI) in 2010. On 5 June 2022, he and British journalist Dom Phillips were killed in the remote Javari Valley in the far western part of the state of Amazonas in Brazil, one of the most remote zones in the rainforest. Another victim of Man's war on Nature. RIP
